

M'KINLEY WILL NOT DIE; DOCTORS GIVE OUT HOPE

At Two O'clock This Afternoon, After a Thorough Examination, Physicians Announce There is No Reason Why He Should Not Recover.

BULLETS DID NOT TOUCH A VITAL SPOT

Roosevelt is at the President's Bedside—Mrs. McKinley is Bearing It Well—Members of the Cabinet Present—Change for Better This Afternoon.

Buffalo, Sept. 7, 6 a. m.—The president passed a good night; temperature 102; pulse 110; respiration 24. Rixey, Park, Cortelyou.
7 a. m.—At 7 o'clock the president's condition was unchanged. Rixey announced that the surgeons will be able to decide during the day whether or not the wounds are likely to prove fatal.
7:30 a. m.—There is talk of lynching Nieman. Men and boys are parading the street with ropes and clubs, shouting "Lynch him!" Thousands of people are in the vicinity of the jail. They are held in check by the police and soldiers.
8:30 a. m.—At 8:30 the president was borne to Milburn home. He is reported to have withstood the journey well. A dispatch was sent to Secretary Hay, informing him with an official statement that the president's condition was serious.
Noon.—The following bulletin was issued by the president's physicians at 12 o'clock noon: There is not a decided change in the president's condition. Pulse 130; temperature 102; respiration 28.

sleep and while he slept his injuries were being tenderly cared for by physicians and nurses.
Prisoner Makes a Confession
It is pretty well-known that the assassin made a detailed confession, but the officers are guarding it jealously.
When the prisoner made his confession he shook like an aspen. Many times he had to stop in order to regain enough nerve with which to proceed. It was only with the greatest difficulty that he signed the confession. When taken to his cell after the sweating process he fell on a cot in a state of total collapse. He went to sleep about two o'clock and slept soundly.

Suspect He Had Accomplices
A cordon of police has been stretched around the Milburn home, extending two blocks and no one is permitted to pass the lines. The police are looking for two accomplices of Ozogooloz who are believed to be still in Buffalo. One is a man and the other a woman. The prisoner is being closely guarded and is not even known just where he is being kept.
Punishment 20 Years
If the president recovers the only charge that can be preferred against the assassin is assault with intent to kill, for which the maximum punishment is twenty years.

Will Use X Ray
The surgeons are talking of using the X-ray to locate the bullet in the president's body and if that fails they will resort to the knife.
Rumor He Is Dying
Mrs. McKinley sat on the veranda a few minutes this morning chatting with friends. This is taken as a reassuring sign, but the fact that members of the cabinet are gathered at the president's bedside started the rumor that he is dying. His temperature has gone to 105.

Fear Blood Poisoning
The surgeons announced at noon that they feared that blood poisoning and if it sets in they say the president will die.
The bullet has lodged in the muscles of the back. The police fear another riot if this is made known and are calling out the reserves.

England Feels Sorry
London, September 7.—London feels almost as much sorrow over the shooting of McKinley as if the king had been assassinated. The subject is on everybody's lips and expressions of sympathy are constant. The feeling among the tourists at Glasgow runs high. They assembled today and passed resolutions of regret that the assassin had not been lynched.

Mrs. McKinley Slept Well
Buffalo, Sept. 7.—Mrs. McKinley slept well last night but with her it was a forced sleep. She wanted to spend the night at her husband's bedside, but in her feeble condition this was not to be thought of.
In the president's chamber there was watchfulness every second.
Dr. Rixey was with him until dawn-break. All of the bulletins that came from the bedside during the night showed the president resting comfortably. He was under the influence of strong opiates which induced

ASSASSIN AN AVOWED ANARCHIST; HAS A RED RECORD IN CLEVELAND

Leon Ozogooloz Was a Member of the Anarchist Society in That City, and Was Always Talking About the Wrongs of the Poor.

Buffalo, September 7.—The would-be assassin slept until four thirty o'clock. After awaking he asked for a drink of water. This was given him and after remaining awake for a short time he went to sleep, sleeping soundly until six thirty o'clock. It is thought that he will be kept in his present cell until the outcome of the president's injuries are known more definitely. It is not probable he will be arraigned in court for a preliminary hearing during the day. A strong guard will be maintained about the station so as to have protection in case there are any further demonstrations by the mob.

Ozogooloz said this morning after another session in the sweat box: "I shot him for an example, and hope he will die. I shot him because it was my duty. The man who succeeds him must not be a slave of capital or he will perish too."

Ozogooloz's record establishes beyond doubt that he was an anarchist and he was associated with active anarchists here and he was an avowed believer in anarchistic principles and was a member of the anarchists' organizations. He always persisted in talking about anarchy when he could get anybody to listen to him. The man who preceded Ozogooloz in line at the exposition, was a swarthy man with bloodless lips, shaggy eyebrows and a mustache. Secret Service officers Ireland and Foster disliked his looks and pushed him away as he hung on the president's hand. While their attention was devoted to him, the assassin fired.

A woman described him as tall, handsome and dressed in white. She was near the entrance of the arch. Before the news of the shooting reached that place she ran up to a guard and exclaimed: "Did you hear a whistle just now?" Then she dashed away.

A Most Radical Red
Chicago, September 7.—Abraham Izaak, the leader of the anarchists suspects in custody here is said to be one of the most radical reds in the United States. He was arrested in Portland, Oregon, several years ago for sending incendiary matter through the mails. The suspension of the newspaper he was publishing was forced, whereupon he went to San Francisco and started a similar organ which was also forced to suspend. He then came to Chicago, arriving here last January.

WASHINGTON FEELS HOPEFUL THAT THE PRESIDENT WILL LIVE

The Thought of a Fatal Termination is Referred to with Apprehension by the Officials—Public Matters Now in Excellent Shape.

Washington, September 7.—The news at the national capitol this forenoon that the president is making a courageous fight against death is so favorable that his friends and subordinates in Washington are hopeful that he will survive to serve out his second term. They believe his superb recuperative powers will come to his rescue, as they did last winter, and pull him out of the jaws of death. Nevertheless they are acutely alive to the seriousness of the misfortune that has befallen him. Gunshot wounds sustained by men of Mr. McKinley's advanced years are likely to produce fatal consequences. It is upon this hypothesis that Washington is discussing the probability of the death of the president.

Hope for His Recovery
For the present the thought of a fatal termination of the president's condition is referred to with awe-like apprehension and there is a hopeful even prayerful anticipation that there may be no need for meeting those grave emergencies which would follow a fatal termination of the tragic event.

It is regarded as fortunate that there are no matters now which are deemed urgent or particularly important in foreign or domestic affairs. The Chinese situation long since ceased to have any menace and the slow negotiations will proceed in the channels already marked for them. The Philippine situation is now purely a matter of ministerial functions. The little rumpus in Colombia is not believed to contain any possibilities. Internal affairs were never in a better state. It is anticipated, therefore, that an extended period of convalescence will not embarrass the functions of the government in any matter.

In Excellent Health
When President McKinley started on the present trip he was pronounced by his friends to be in excellent health. Last winter, it will be remembered, he suffered from quite an attack of what the doctor's pronounced grip and malarial fever. This resulted in the calling off of all social engagements and even the formal functions of the cabinet and the supreme court had to be countermanded after invitations were sent out. Toward the end of the session he so far recovered as to be able to give one dinner to the diplomatic corps. Plans to attend the Harvard and other commencement exercises were at that time abandoned.

Illness of Mrs. McKinley
When the western trip was decided upon the president had regained his normal health and Mrs. McKinley was about as well as ordinarily. The sudden and alarming illness of Mrs. McKinley in Los Angeles interfered with the programme. For days she hovered on the brink of the grave when finally life returned and the president's special hastened to Washington. In this city the invalid remained still in a very serious condition for a great many days. Finally on July 5 it was decided that she could be removed to Canton. The trip was made without any misfortune and the president and his wife entered their new home in Canton. The chance seemed to agree with Mrs. McKinley and as the days went by she slowly regained health and strength.

BUFFALO TRAGEDY SHOCKS THE CITY OF JANESVILLE

Newspaper Office Thronged with an Anxious Public, Expressing Universal Horror Over Attempted Assassination of President McKinley.

HAVE CONFIDENCE IN ROOSEVELT

The People Are Hoping Against Hope—Bulletins from the Bedside of the Nation's Head Eagerly Awaited—Interviews with the Leading Citizens.

News of the assault on President McKinley at Buffalo yesterday afternoon was received in Janesville with a display of the deepest feeling everywhere.
The first announcements of the news found the people thronging the street but half ready to believe it, so utterly foreign to their thoughts was the likelihood of such a thing occurring in this country at this time.

Extra Papers Issued
The news was first bulletined in front of the newspaper offices at 3:30 o'clock, the extra editions of the Gazette being on the street a few minutes later. Extra editions of this paper followed one another as fast as they arrived, and within an hour after the tragedy all Janesville knew of the catastrophe that had been wrought by the hand of the assassin in the Pan-American city.

Could Not Believe Report
The first wild hope of all who heard the news and became convinced that there was some ground for it, was that some one had been shot, but that the victim had not been the president. It was at first thought that shots might have been fired on the grounds, maybe in the vicinity of the president, and that in the confusion following a wild rumor had gained circulation. The later and more definite news, however, proved the reports too true, and the crowds gave themselves to the greatest fear.

Demand for Vengeance
With the first expressions of horror at the deed, and the hope for the life of the country's executive, there followed a universal cry for vengeance upon the assassin. Unknown and unnamed as yet the crowds thronged the streets and called down upon his head the direst punishment that mind could imagine or their tongues frame. Hanging was too good for the man, whoever he was, said dozens of the business men while others of the most prominent men of the city have expressed the wish that he might be boiled in oil or torn limb from limb. No vengeance was thought too harsh to be visited upon the fellow and none was slow in expressing his opinion.

Scenes at the Hotels
At the hotels the lobbies were the gathering places for crowds that argued among themselves deploring the event that threatens to take the life of the executive and condemning the assassin in language that could scarcely express the bitterness with which the deed and the man were regarded. "Hanging is too good for the fellow," said a man in the Hotel Myers lobby.

"This is a time of peace and prosperity when the act of the man is as incomprehensible as it would were it the act of the infinite himself," said another.

"It seems too great a mercy to the man to give him the fare that he will have," was the expression of another.

Other opinions expressed upon the streets and by those who stood around the bulletin boards of the newspapers were as follows:
Should Be Boiled in Oil
He should be boiled in oil, publicly, solemnly, and with as much ceremony and with all the due process of law that is now observed in the case of the lawful departing of murderers.

"Anarchist, lunatic or fiend, his act has no excuse."
The fact that such an act could take place in this country drew forth the universal opinion that something would have to be done as a preventive of future acts of the same kind. Three presidents in thirty-six years, it was said, was too much for the country to stand. President Lincoln was assassinated in 1865, Garfield in 1881, and now President McKinley in 1901, made a trio of the men whose loss the country could ill afford at any time, under any circumstances.

Sole Topic of Conversation
The sole topic of conversation on the streets today is the attack on the president's life. Everyone is interested in the outcome of the shooting and on all sides hopes are expressed that the president may be able to pull through. Republicans and democrats are not slow to speak an opinion as to the punishment that should be meted out to the assassin.

The democrats have nothing but praise for the wounded president and are most determined in their expressions of disgust for a man who would attempt to kill a man who has been so fair to all parties.

At the present time there are no great political questions agitating the two parties that would lead to such an act.

The following are some of the expressions of opinion heard on the street:

Express Their Opinion
Dr. J. B. Whiting—I think the hand-shaking practice is idiotic. This should put an end to such a practice. From what I can learn of the case and what I know of surgery, I think he has a good chance of recovery.

Judge C. L. Field—I deplore the shooting and have formed no opinion in regard to it.

Senator Whitehead—The attempt upon the life of the president was the act of a self-confessed anarchist. He should receive the severest penalty of the law, and all good citizens demand that he should be left in the hands of the law. Meanwhile let us

ANARCHISTS MAY BE ALL EXPELLED

Nieman's Crime Expected to Result in Movement to Rid Country of Red Conspirators.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7.—One effect of the attempted assassination of President McKinley will be, in all probability, a movement in this country to suppress anarchists, who in the opinion of the officials here, have entirely too much influence. There is no sympathy whatever for this class of people, who are enemies to law and order, and action has been taken by some state authorities that makes it so uncomfortable for the anarchists that they have left the borders of those states and taken up their headquarters in New Jersey, which state offers them a hospitable welcome.

Made Delavan Hot
Delavan, Sept. 7.—(Special.)—A carpenter working for Mr. Jamison of this town expressed himself yesterday as being glad of McKinley's attempted assassination. He was immediately discharged, and the feeling against him ran high. The people are not in the mood to tolerate talk of this order.

Henry Johnson of Edgerton was in the city yesterday on business.

GOV. LA FOLLETTE A VERY SICK MAN

He is Suffering from Internal Troubles and is Unable to Retain Nourishment.

Milwaukee, Wis., September 7.—The Evening Wisconsin today received information from private sources which indicates that Governor Robert La Follette is a very sick man. Governor La Follette has been confined to his bed for several weeks. He is suffering from a complication of internal troubles and is not able to retain any nourishment. The governor was expected to attend the Wisconsin state fair, and also the reception and banquet to General MacArthur in Milwaukee next week, but his illness will make this impossible.

RECEPTION HAS BEEN POSTPONED

MacArthur's Banquet at Milwaukee Has Been Put Off on Account of McKinley.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 7.—The announcement of the assault that had been made upon President McKinley resulted last night in the postponement of the MacArthur banquet, and several social affairs that were to have taken place within the next few days. It was thought by the management of the MacArthur celebration that under the circumstances the postponement of the reception to the major general would meet with his approval, as well as that of everyone else. No date has been set for the reception and none will be decided upon until the result of President McKinley's wounds is determined.

The reception and banquet which was to have been given to General MacArthur on his arrival in this city on Wednesday has been temporarily postponed.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

MRS. M'KINLEY.

75 WERE HERE AT MONROE FAIR

JANESVILLE WELL REPRESENTED AT GATHESING.

Special Train on Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Road, Furnished Excellent Accommodations—A Great Crowd Thronged the Grounds Yesterday, Making Friday Banner Day.

Monroe, Wis., Sept. 6. (Special.)—Fully seventy-five people from Janesville have been in attendance at the Green county fair, held at Monroe this week. Today is the last day and the programme from early till late is an excellent one. Yesterday was the banner day of the fair, as Friday always is. The crowd was estimated at about 7,000 people.

The exhibits in all departments would be a credit to any fair. Every building on the grounds is filled with an excellent showing. The live stock department never contained better kept stock. From early morning till late the crowd is entertained. In fact, Secretary Ben Treat snapped out a programme that would be hard to excel. At 10 o'clock yesterday morning a special train arrived bringing 800 people from Burlington. They were accompanied by the famous boys' band of Monticello.

An excellent musical programme was rendered by the Monticello boys, who were attired in uniforms of the Rough Rider type. The famous Monroe military band also took part in the musical programme, and were well deserving of the frequent and loud applause bestowed upon them. This organization is second to none and Monroe should well feel proud of their band. The afternoon program each afternoon opened with Prof. Rice's pony, dog and monkey show, an amusing exhibit, which lasted an hour. At 2 o'clock Friday the races were called, and consisted of a special 2:35 pace for a purse of $200. There were five starters and each heat proved interesting to the large crowd. Following this race was the 2:15 pace, with a $300 purse. There were five starters in this event. The last race was a half mile running event for a $100 trophy. This contest proved of an exciting nature, the horses being closely matched as to speed. All about the grounds are the usual number of side shows and other takes that go to make a county fair. At 11 o'clock Friday morning a wild crowd raised all kinds of havoc. The animal became overheated and after driving three men all over the grounds it was finally subdued. Monroe and all Green county can well feel proud of her fair this year and those in attendance from the Bower City were well repaid for making the trip.

Fruit Venders in a Fight
Carlo Carello, a young man from Chicago got into a fight with the proprietors of the fruit stand in the Hayes block yesterday afternoon and was roughly handled. Both members of the fruit firm took a hand at punching him. Matters looked quite serious for a short time until some citizens interfered and separated them. Carello visited the municipal court for a warrant for the arrest of the assailants but could not convince Judge Fife that the fruit sellers had struck the first blow and under these conditions the judge advised him to drop the matter and keep away from the fruit stand.

How It Worked.
"Yes," said the old inhabitant, "old man Jinks climbed a pine tree to get rid of the life insurance agent, an' a hurricane come 'long an' blowed the tree down, an' the agent wuz the first to pull Jinks from under it; an' he wuz head palbearer at Jinks' funeral, an' preached a sermon on the uncertainties of life, an' insured the whole town, an' went his way rejoicin'!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Battle-Ship Not a Bird.
It is related that Julian Corbett, the naval expert and author of "Drake and the Tudor Navy" and "The Successors of Drake," wrote some time ago to the British admiralty office suggesting that a new first-class battleship in course of construction be christened the Drake. A formal acknowledgment of the receipt of the letter was followed by a dignified reply expressing the admiralty's regret at not being able to carry out Mr. Corbett's suggestion, and explaining that it would be contrary to all precedent to name a first-class battleship after a bird.

GERALD'S PRETTY COUSIN FROM SEATTLE

By C. E. CORBET.

"Will," said Gerald as he boarded the New York train, from which city he was to sail for Europe, "when my pretty little cousin comes on from Seattle be sure you lay yourself out to entertain her. You have her photo, and I have written a minute description of you, so you'll recognize each other the instant she steps off the Pullman. Sorry I can't be here to do the gallant myself, but you'll have to take my place."

There was time for no further conversation, for the big limited was already pulling out of the station, and Will Dodge was left to his own pleasant cogitations, on the beauty of the western belle and the enjoyable time he was going to have escorting her around the city. However, day after day and week after week went by, and there was no word from the expected young lady. Mr. William Dodge actually lost his usual good spirits and grew dumpy and petulant. "Fretting for the girl who never came" was his usual greeting from the Misses Annabel and Wilhelmina Dodge, who were never known to sigh for an unknown quantity when there was plenty of available material near at hand.

"I don't believe there is any Seattle girl. It's all a myth, a story that Gerald got up to give Will something to think about while he's gone. Annabel, didn't Annie Olson, the washerwoman, come from Seattle?" said Wilhelmina one day.

"Yes, but what could she possibly have to do with Gerald's beautiful cousin?"

"Nothing now probably, but we may establish some sort of connection between them."

Annie Olson objected wildly and strenuously when a certain proposition was laid before her by the two young ladies, but by dint of much coaxing and the promise of a last season's plink foulard of Annabel's and a huge white leghorn of Wilhelmina's she finally consented to play her part in a scheme which had for its object the final destruction of Mr. Dodge's affection for an unknown beauty.

A few days later that gentleman was called up over the telephone by a lady with a peculiarly sweet voice.

"Is this Mr. William Dodge? Oh, I'm so glad I found you! This is Miss Lattimer of Seattle. Oh, you are surprised, aren't you? Of course my cousin Gerald has told you all about me. What is it? Oh, I arrived yesterday with my brother, who at the last moment decided to come east! What? Yes, thank you, you can do something for me. I just called you up to ask a favor of you. My brother went on to Boston this morning and left me with a box for the opera on my hands. An old friend is going with me this evening. I want you to join us. Can I count on you? Oh, thanks! The pleasure will be mutual then. So glad you can come. Will send the ticket by messenger this afternoon. Goodby, Goodby."

"There," said Miss Wilhelmina Dodge to Miss Annabel Dodge as she dropped the redvelvet into its hook, "if your beloved sister is not afflicted for the rest of her life with chronic throat trouble after keeping up that voice for so many minutes it will be a miraculous escape. Now let us hurry home to prepare Miss Lattimer of Seattle for an evening at the opera."

It took the united efforts of both sisters and several hours' time to allow the constantly arising fears and apprehensions of Miss Annie Olson and to array her in apparel worthy the occasion. It also took much persuasion and many bribes and applications of the scrubbing brush to persuade Mr. John Johnson to accompany the resplendent creature who sat stiffly conscious in the drawing room waiting for the time of departure.

Mr. Will Dodge entered the house that afternoon at an unusually early hour and allowed much time to elapse in the preparation of a careful and elaborate evening toilet. At dinner he did not gratify the natural curiosity of his sisters concerning the nature of his engagement, but maintained a dignity which successfully resisted all attempts at rallery, the gentleman shrewdly thinking that now Miss Lattimer really had arrived he would keep the knowledge to himself as long as possible.

In box No. 29 of the Metropolitan Grand Opera House that evening there sat a lady and gentleman who drew forth smiles of curiosity and amusement from all around. Many pairs of glasses were leveled on them, but none so fixedly as a couple which were directed from an obscure corner of the gallery. Some minutes after the curtain rolled up the two watchers and others who happened to be looking saw the hangings at the rear of the box part and a man, well dressed, handsome and evidently cultured, enter. They noticed that he took only a step or two forward and then, with an expression of intense surprise and perplexity, turned on his heel and left.

When Mr. Dodge entered the house some time in the wee small hours of the morning, all was quiet as usual, and there was nothing to remind him of the girl from Seattle. Nor was there any mention of her for some weeks and months. At the end of that time, when he married the cousin of Gerald, she, having been informed of a certain little former adventure of his, reminded him of it, but he was so entirely innocent of any such affair that she never mentioned it again.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Reassured.

Physician—After this morning I shall not call again.

OCONOWOC WAS BADLY DEFEATED

Score in Yesterday's Golf Contest on Buckleton Links, Was Janesville 53; Oconomowoc, 0.

With the exception of one or two players the Oconomowoc County Club golf team was easy for the team from the Simmesippi Club.

The visitors were defeated by a score of 53 to 0, not a member of their team coming in up.

The visitors' game through the fair green was fine, but they seemed to be unable to negotiate the fast dry putting greens and lost a shot or two on most of them. The Simmesippi course is all right as far as the fair green is concerned, but the putting greens are in bad shape. To a club that has been used to playing over greens that are kept smooth and well watered, and where a ball started straight will go straight, Simmesippi greens were a puzzle. By far the most interesting game of the afternoon was the one between "Gale" Thompson and Albert Schaller. This was a closely contested match and a mistake in a shot meant the loss of a ball. In the first round Schaller negotiated the nine holes in 39, or two below par, and the best round ever played over the course in a match game. The match was won by Schaller by a score of 4 up.

W. V. Hoare, the Oconomowoc's professional, ran up against a hard proposition when he started in to play the best ball of Colin C. MacLean and Chester Brewer. The home players put up a good game and at the end of the first nine holes they were all even. In the second nine Hoare succeeded in winning the odd hole, leaving him one up in eighteen.

The visitors were all well pleased with their treatment and extended a hearty invitation to the members of the Simmesippi Club to play a return match.

The score by holes was as follows: Simmesippi 53, Oconomowoc 0.

Armored Automobiles

The progress of military automobilism in Germany is indicated by the fact that the minister of war has lately ordered a series of machines which will carry two small Maxim guns, protected by nickel-steel plates. He has also ordered a series of automobile breaks which will be provided with tables. These breaks will be used by the general staff and the officers may thus consult their maps or papers en route, spreading them upon the tables. A series of light vehicles, or volitantes, is also to be constructed, to be used on the firing grounds for ascertaining the results of the cannon shot. In Austria-Hungary, the minister of war is having a series of automobiles constructed.

A Remarkable Book.

The most remarkable book in the world so far as appearance is concerned, is neither written nor printed. It is in the Imperial Library of Paris, and the letters are cut out of tissue paper with a pair of scissors. A sheet of blue tissue paper, in which the letters are cut, is placed between two pages of white, and so the matter is read.

A Four-Day Voyage to Europe.

It would require, according to recent calculations, printed in the Scientific American, a steamship of 935 feet long, 87 feet wide drawing 30 feet of water driven at 30 knots by engines having 110,000 horse power, to make a four day voyage to Europe. Each one of the triple screws would need an engine of about 37,000 horse power. The daily consumption of coal would be about 1,700 tons or 8,800 tons for the voyage. The coal bunkers would be filled with a provision of some 9,000 tons. It is not at all likely that a four-day boat will ever be built on such a plan. The newly devised steam turbines give 37 knots to torpedo boats and promise great speed when applied to large vessels.

An Unique Industry.

An unique industry is followed at Atlantic City. I was passing along the board walk there not long ago and I saw a sign which read as follows: "Children carefully cared for; five cents per hour." The man who managed the enterprise had several assistants and was doing a thriving business. Many tired mothers left their children with him while they took a bath, and nurses sometimes shift their responsibility at the rate of five cents an hour.—Washington Star.

Pan American Congress.

The officials of the state department are encouraged in the hope that the Pan-American congress at Mexico will meet after all with a full attendance of the republics of the two continents. Exchanges now in progress are the department expects that Chile, on the one side, and Peru and Bolivia on the other, will compromise their difficulties.—Philadelphia Times.

Wine on a Poacher.

The other, used by Scottish poachers, is one of the most deadly fishing instruments known. On some waters it is far more effective than a net. It may be described as a water-kite, which serves to take out over the water a line bearing fifty or more flies. The other itself is a floating piece of board, loaded along one edge to keep it upright. The poacher walks along the side of loch or river, letting out the fly-decorated line as he goes, the other board gradually working out toward the center. An enormous area of water is fished at one time, and numbers of fish are killed.

Choosing Teachers for Girls.
"In filling places in my corps of teachers," writes Mary Louise Graham concerning "My Boarding-School for Girls," in the Ladies' Home Journal, "I considered personal attractiveness as well as intellectual qualifications. Girls are influenced so much more readily by women whom they admire on the social side. More than anything else, I held out for a simple, natural manner."

Difficult Digestion

That is dyspepsia.

It makes life miserable.

Its sufferers eat not because they want to—but simply because they must.

They complain of a bad taste in the mouth, a tenderness at the pit of the stomach, a feeling of puffiness, headache, heartburn and what not.

Hood's Sarsaparilla cured Joseph F. Laine, Flanagan, Ky., who writes: "I was troubled with dyspepsia for a number of years and took medicine that did me no good. I was advised by friends to try Hood's Sarsaparilla which I did and it put my bowels in perfect condition, gave me strength and energy and made me feel like a new person."

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY'S LIFE

Career of Wounded Chief Magistrate Given in Detail.

STATESMAN AND SOLDIER.

Gained Fame Also as a Lawyer—His Record in the Civil War—From Humble Beginning to the Presidency of a Great Nation.

William McKinley, twenty-fifth President of the United States, was born at Niles, Trumbull County, Ohio, Jan. 29, 1843. His ancestors were of Scotch-Irish descent, and came to this country about a century and a half ago. William McKinley, father of the President, married, in 1829, Nancy Campbell Allison, who was of English and Scotch-German descent. The President is the seventh of their nine children. Iron manufacturing and molding was the trade of the elder McKinley and of his father. They were men of strong character and ability, devout members of the Methodist Church, and in politics ardent Whigs and Republicans. The father of the President lived to see his son Governor of Ohio, and his mother saw him President. She died Dec. 12, 1897, at the age of 55.

Early Training at Niles.
William's education was begun in the public schools of Niles, but when he was 9 years old the family moved to Portland, Mahoning County, Ohio, where his schooling was continued in Union Seminary. He remained here until he entered Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa., in 1860. Soon after this, although he was fond of athletic sports, his health failed on account of overstudy. Upon recovery he became a clerk in the Poland postoffice, and held this position when the civil war broke out in 1861. June 11 of that year he enlisted as a private in Company E of the Twenty-third Ohio Volunteer Infantry.

His Organization Became Famous.
This organization became a famous regiment, and numbered among its officers and men General W. S. Rosecrans, General R. B. Hayes (who became President of the United States in 1877), General E. P. Scammon, General James M. Conley and many other well-known men. The regiment saw active service throughout almost the entire war. McKinley served on the staffs of Hayes, Crook and Hancock. The four years of army life proved beneficial to the young soldier who was much stronger physically at the close of the war than at its beginning. Of his military record it has been stated that McKinley, both as private and officer, in the commissary department, was courageous, clear-headed and self-possessed. For services rendered in the winter camp at Fayetteville he received his first promotion, becoming a commissary sergeant, April 15, 1862.

On the Field of Battle.
Feb. 7, 1863, while at Camp Platt, he was promoted to first lieutenant, and July 25 of the following year, when he was 21 years of age, he was made captain. Previous to this his regiment had taken part in engagements at Cloyd's Mountain, New River Bridge, Lexington, Buffalo Gap, Buchanan, Otter Creek, Lynchburg, and Buford's Gap. At Berryville, Sept. 3, 1864, his horse was shot under him. On March 14, 1865, he received his commission as major by brevet "for gallant and meritorious services at the battles of Opequan, Cedar Creek and Fisher's Hill."

Began Study of Law.
Upon leaving the army he returned to his home in Poland and began the study of law with Judge Charles E. Glidden and David M. Wilson on Youngstown, Ohio. He subsequently studied at the Albany (N. Y.) Law School, and was admitted to the Ohio bar in March, 1867. He then settled in Canton, Ohio, which has since been his home, and soon attracted attention as a lawyer of much ability. In 1870 he married Miss Ida E. Saxton of that place. Their only children, two in number, died in early life. Although Stark County generally gave a Democratic plurality, he was elected prosecuting attorney in 1869, as a Republican, but was defeated for the same position two years later. From this period Mr. McKinley devoted much time to politics, and in 1876 was elected to Congress and was returned in 1878, 1880, 1882, 1884, 1886 and 1888. He was defeated in 1890 after the passage by Congress of the tariff bill named after him.

Aided Blaine in 1884.
In 1884, Mr. McKinley was a delegate-at-large from Ohio to the national convention, and aided in the nomination of James J. Blaine for the Presidency.

He similarly represented his state in the next convention, where he supported John Sherman. After the first day's balloting indications pointed to the conclusion that McKinley himself might, in all probability, be nominated, but in an earnest and impassioned address he demanded that no votes be cast for him.

Elected Governor in 1891.
In 1891 he was elected Governor of Ohio by a majority of about 21,000, over ex-Governor James E. Campbell, Democrat.

The issue at stake also placed himself in opposition to the free coinage of silver. To the national convention of 1892 he was again delegate-at-large from Ohio, and was made permanent chairman. Notwithstanding the fact that many delegates wished to nominate him for the presidency, he urged that President Harrison deserved re-nomination, and gave him his support. Mr. McKinley's name was not formally brought before the convention, but he received, nevertheless, 182 votes.

In 1893 he was re-elected Governor of Ohio, having a majority of 80,995. At the expiration of his term he returned to Canton.

He was nominated for President on the first ballot at the Republican national convention at St. Louis in June, 1896, the vote being: McKinley, 661½; Reed, 84½; Quay, 61½; Morton, 58; Allison, 35½.

Election to Presidency.
In the November election following the total popular vote was 11,930,942, of which the McKinley electors received 7,104,779, being a plurality of 601,854 over those cast for William Jennings Bryan of Nebraska, and a majority over all candidates of 311,742. The vote in the electoral college was 271 for McKinley and 176 for Bryan. The issues on which the campaign was fought were chiefly on the free coinage of silver and the restoration of a protective tariff.

He was nominated for President a second time at St. Louis in 1900, there being no other candidate, and he was re-elected in the following November.

HOMELY GIRLS WANTED.

School Board Offers Bonus for Teacher of Least Physical Charm.

Fredericktown, O., Sept. 7.—The school board of Butler has offered a bonus for the homeliest teacher in Ohio to take charge of the primary department there for one year.

Ugliness of person must be the successful applicant's first qualification. Ability as a teacher enters into the matter later, if at all. The woman to whom the position is tendered must sign a contract not to get married till the end of the school term. Recently the board engaged Miss Ada Long to teach the primary room, but shortly after her election as teacher she was married and offered her resignation. Then another beautiful young woman, Miss Myrtle Stewart, received the favorable consideration of the board. Her marriage closed a little romance a week later. Next Jennie Hall got the position and a husband at the end of a week.

FOR PROMOTION OF VICE-PRESIDENT

ROOSEVELT WILL BE PRESIDENT IF MCKINLEY DIES.

Provisions of the Law—No Delay is Possible—Oath To Be Administered at Once to New President Should Vacancy Happen—The Senate Would Assemble.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7.—In the event of the president's wound's proving fatal Vice-President Roosevelt would immediately become the chief executive of the nation. There is no set form of procedure by which this would be accomplished.

In the history of the government there have been four instances in which the vice-president has succeeded to the presidency through the death of the chief executive. In no two cases was the procedure exactly the same. In the last case that of Chester A. Arthur succeeding to the presidency upon the death of James A. Garfield, the demise of the latter was announced to the vice-president by the late president's cabinet.

No Notice to Successor Needed.
There is no requirement in law for the serving of an official notice upon the vice-president any more than it is required that a president-elect be notified of his election.

The first formal notice that would be sent out in case the president should die would be by Secretary of State Hay, who would notify the country's representatives abroad of the sad event.

Vice-President Roosevelt, upon assuming the office of president, would as his first official act, issue a proclamation announcing the death of the late president. He would designate the day of burial and appoint it to be observed throughout the United States as a day of mourning.

Senate Session to Be Called.
Another proclamation would be issued, in all probability, convening the Senate in extraordinary session. In the case of President Arthur this proclamation was issued the day after he had taken the oath of office, or Sept. 23, and the Senate was convened on Oct. 10.

This meeting of the Senate would be necessary for the confirmation of cabinet appointments which the new president might make. The details of the president's funeral would naturally be in charge of the Secretary of State. Through him notices and invitations to distinguished foreign representatives would be extended.

Law on the Succession.
The order of succession in case of the death of both the President and Vice President is in the following order: Secretary of State, Secretary of the Treasury, Secretary of War, Attorney General, Postmaster General, Secretary of the Navy, and Secretary of the Interior.

The law defining the order in which members of the administration stand in case of vacancies in the offices above them was passed by Congress on Jan. 19, 1886.

Plan for Executive Work.
Steps were taken this morning to provide for the future of the executive branch of the government. It was realized that under the most favorable conditions the President's injuries are of such a character as to make it almost certain that he cannot undertake for a long time to discharge the duties of chief executive, even in the most formal way.

Every member of the cabinet able to travel is expected to speed at once to Buffalo, and there a cabinet council will be held to decide upon the course to be followed by the executive branch.

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Thirty Years of Suffering.
"I suffered for thirty years with diarrhoea and thought I was past being cured," says John S. Halloway, of French Camp, Miss. "I had spent so much time and money and suffered so much that I had given up all hopes of recovery. I was so feeble from the effects of the diarrhoea that I could do no kind of labor, could not even travel, but by accident I was permitted to find a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after taking several bottles I am entirely cured of that trouble. I am so pleased with the result that I am anxious that it be in reach of all who suffer as I have." For sale by King's Pharmacy and People's Drug Co.

Will Impound Police Chief.
Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 7.—The civic alliance has practically decided to bring impeachment proceedings against Supt. of Police Guigley and his subordinates on the police force who declined to close the saloons found by representatives of the alliance to be violating the law.

Have you a sense of fullness in the region of your stomach after eating? If so you will be benefited by using Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They also cure belching and sour stomach. They regulate the bowels too. Price, 25 cents. Sold by King's pharmacy and People's Drug Co.

Innovation in Banking.
A new bank has been chartered and will presently open for business in the arcade of the Empire building at Broadway and Rector street, New York city, which will innovate by having its hours from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. continuously. This industry has another peculiarity—the banking will be for the tenants of that one building, who from top to bottom are big steel and iron companies, of recent formation, with billions of capital and no permanent connection with banks.

An Elevator in the Monument.
Not all of us have viewed the national capital from the top of Washington monument, but it will hereafter be easy to do so if on the spot. The shaft has been equipped with an elevator, and the new "lift," which rises 555 feet to the top, is provided with electrical cut-offs and mechanical grips of every kind so as to insure the safety of the public. In the opinion of the government engineering officers, it would be impossible for the car to fall any distance, no matter what might happen to the machinery. The new car will not be put into service for the public for about a week. In the meantime the machinery will be run daily and the attendants and engineers practiced in its operation. In favorable weather the view from the top of the monument is a magnificent one, comprehending the city and much historic country.

British Cabinet Wages.
The annual "wages bill" of the British cabinet is no light sum—at present it nearly reaches £100,000; or, to be exact, it amounts to £93,550. Of the cabinet as at present constituted the best paid is the Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, who receives £20,000 a year; the lord chancellor comes next with £10,000, and the Irish lord chancellor's salary is £8,000. Seven ministers—respectively stationed at the foreign, colonial, war, India, treasury and home offices, and the chancellor of the exchequer—are paid £5,000 each, which is the standard salary for a secretary of state; while the first lord of the admiralty has £4,500. The remaining eight members of the cabinet are each given £2,000 per annum. The offices of the Irish chief secretary and of postmaster-general are respectively rated at £4,425 and £2,500.

GET INSIDE.

Your Friends and Neighbors in Janesville, will show you how.

Rubbing the back won't cure backache. A liniment may relieve, but can't cure. Backache comes from the inside, from the kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills get inside. Here is Janesville proof that this is so:

Veteran A. F. Lee, of 61 Sharon St., carpenter, says:

"For twenty years it troubled me a great deal, many days I could hardly keep my work, and by rights, should have laid at home and doctored. It was seldom that my back did not ache, and I have been completely laid up for three or four days at a stretch. When stooping or lifting sharp twinges penetrated the kidneys, the secretions from those organs were too frequent, and accompanied by pain. I used all kinds of remedies but none gave permanent relief. Obtaining Doan's Kidney Pills at the People's Drug Co., I took them, and after the first three or four doses a noticeable change was brought about. I improved steadily from then on and on completing the treatment I was in good condition and am now well."

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for U. S. Also on sale at King's Pharmacy.

The members of the city government, however, denounced the "antipatriotic" character of the poet's works and rejected the gift, which will now, according to the terms of the will, be offered to Budapest.

THE HAND OF ANARCHY

When the news was flashed over the wire at four o'clock yesterday afternoon, that President McKinley was shot, while holding a public reception in Buffalo, a wave of sorrow was quickly followed by a wave of indignation, and the question on every lip, was, "Who is the assassin?"

Leon Ozogooloz, a fanatic Pollock, twenty-five years of age, whose home was at Cleveland is the man, and anarchy which is realized as a species of insanity, was the cause.

This dastardly act, should seal for all time the fate of this disturbing element in this country. If there was ever a premeditated attempt at gold-blooded murder, without a shadow of provocation, it was when this man Ozogooloz deliberately fired at President McKinley. The life of such a man is of but small recompense. This fair land has no room for that class of reptiles. If they are insane, they should be locked up; and if they are inspired by anarchy they should be banished from American soil.

The life of President McKinley still hangs in the balance, and it may not be known for several days what the result will be. In the meantime American thought centers around the home where he is suffering, and the most genuine solicitude is expressed on every hand.

A man without an enemy, endeared to the hearts of all of the people, he was faithfully fulfilling a mission, and working out a destiny for the welfare of the country.

His broad, and intelligent statesmanship won its way against skepticism and opposition, and he was recognized at home and abroad as a great leader, worthy of the most implicit confidence.

That he may be spared to serve out the term of office, that promised so much in the way of national beneficence, is the earnest prayer of every loyal American heart.

During the days of uncertainty that follow and while so much anxiety is experienced, generous sympathy will be extended to the invalid wife, who was so dependent upon the love and thoughtful care of the president.

The home life of this man and woman, meant more than simply public life at the white house. It was an ideal home life, in which the great heart of a great man displayed a tender and loving side. When this public life shall have passed into history, the private life will stand out prominently, and reveal many characteristics that won for President McKinley the hearts of the American people.

THE TONGUE OF SLANDER.

Two ladies were seated on a shaded veranda, the other day, busily engaged in discussing that old familiar topic, "the neighbors."

They lived in one of the best neighborhoods of the city, and yet when the community was dissected, up one street and down another, the unwilling listener decided that there must be something wrong in Gotham.

Scarcely a family, escaped the sharp tongue and insinuating suggestions. Character and reputation were treated as flippantly as the discussion of a new hat. The conversation in print would have been pronounced libel, without the aid of a jury, and yet it was permissible in the seclusion of the home, and of every day occurrence.

A thought was suggested concerning gossip, that in many cases it amounts to slander. It is so easy to be suspicious of people, and so much easier to cast a shadow than a ray of light, that many people are injured in the house of their professed friends, and all through thoughtlessness, and unguarded conversation.

It is an old saying and a very true one that a story never loses anything by repeating. Mrs. Smith says to Mrs. Brown: "Don't you think Mr. Jones looks as if he was drinking?" Mrs. Brown had never noticed it, but she tells her neighbor that Mr. Jones is drinking shamefully, and the neighbor tells her friends that Mr. Jones was so drunk the other night that he had to be brought home in a hack.

Poor Jones, who has been carrying around a red nose for two weeks as the result of erysipelas, and doesn't know the taste of whiskey from beer, suddenly gains notoriety as an every day toper, and the family suffer accordingly and all because a woman's tongue wagged recklessly and slander was the result.

Mr. Smith has been a widower for a year. He has ceased to wear crepe on his hat, and is sometimes known to smile.

He was good to his wife while she lived and sees that her grave is well taken care of, although he doesn't spend much time in the cemetery because the surroundings are not conical. He has been known to call at his neighbor's across the street, where Widow Jones lives. Mrs. Gossip lives next door and she tells her friends that Smith and Mrs. Jones are very intimate and she wouldn't be surprised if they were married. Her friends go her one better and say that they are married, and then trouble commences for the Joneses and Smiths, and if they had no thought of marrying before, they are obliged to adopt the suggestion for self protection.

Men are not so much inclined to gossip as women. If Mrs. Smith tells her husband that Jones is drinking, he looks up over his paper and says, "Well, that's his privilege."

If she says to him that the old fool is courting Widow Brown, he wishes him success, but thinks he will get the worst of the bargain.

Men are not angels. A great many of them are not only short of wings but are destitute of the entire equipment, and yet they are not given to gossip, and rarely find time or inclination to slander people.

If a man dislikes his neighbor, he lets him alone. He has discovered that the world is large enough for both, with plenty of elbow room.

If his wife shares in the same dislike, she wants everybody to know it, and her vivid imagination and ready tongue paint the victim as a villain that should be annihilated from the face of the earth.

The Apostle James, in a letter to the early churches, discussed many of the little things of life that more profound writers had not considered so important. In speaking of the tongue, he said that while mankind had been able to tame all kinds of beasts and birds and serpents, and things in the sea, "But the tongue can no man tame; it is an unruly evil, full of deadly poison," and Saint James lived a good many centuries ago, before the modern tongue had been given an opportunity. If he was lying today, and writing on the same topic it might trouble him to find words for expression.

What is there about the tongue that possesses so much ability for either good or evil? The vainest woman never boasts of what a beautiful tongue she has. She may polish her teeth, decorate her fingers with jewels and her ears with diamonds, but the tongue, with all its importance, is neglected. [She has discovered that nature hung it properly, and provided for its restraints, wound it up for a life voyage, and like grandfather's clock, it never runs down.]

It isn't the tongue so much after all, as it is the brain behind it, and it is simply marvelous that the brain, with its wonderful power, is so helpless when it attempts to control the tongue.

A man offends you and impulse prompts you to strike him, but the brain controls the arm and the blenched fist relaxes.

A bee comes buzzing into your face but the brain unclenches the delicate hinges that hold back the lids, and the eye is protected from harm.

And so with every member of the body, the brain is recognized as the controlling force.

But the tongue; what of that? It doesn't require a blow to start it, or a provocation of any kind. It is always ready for business and work, in season and out of season, never demanding an eight hour day, or the protection of a labor union, or any other organization.

If the home is destitute of material it goes into the neighbor's home, and does not hesitate to demolish altars and wreck destinies with ruthless hand.

It sometimes hesitates to call a man a liar to his face for fear of an unsanctified fist, but it is perfectly free to call him that and everything else when his back is turned.

It talks of evil when only good exists, and meddles with affairs of other people in which it has no earthly interest.

The tongue of slander is bad and only bad. Better to speak a good word than to express a breath of suspicion, and better by far to be forever silent than to malign character and tarnish reputation by an unruly tongue.

A brain wholly dedicated to the service of the Master—which in its highest sense means service to humanity—will do more to control the tongue, and direct its utterances, than all else beside. It begets kindly affection, and brotherly love, and inspires "a soft answer that turneth away wrath."

The question of who shall be the next governor is not so important just now as whether Jno. C. Spooner shall be returned to the senate. The matter of governor will take care of itself when the time comes. It is just possible that the present incumbent may acquire a little political sense by experience, though not at all probable; he isn't constructed that way.

Chairman Warden of the democratic committee has the endorsement of the conservative element of the party, in his late utterances against free silver, and populism. It is well for the state that both parties have a conservative element that are ready to unite if necessary to save the state from disgrace and crazy fanaticism.

The man who sits on the fence and criticizes other people's work, never commands much attention or respect. The Journal that attempts to straddle important questions generally meets the same fate. It's about time for Brother Wilder to get off the fence.

Business appears to be moving right along in spite of the Amalgamated association strike. The strikers will wake up some fine morning to find themselves out of a job and about all the sympathy they will get will be "I told you so."

If Chief Clerk Castle of the land department is not a full fledged half breed, he has all the symptoms. He talks about the government as an employment bureau. That's populism boiled down.

Elkhorn is so afraid that she will get an electric road in three years that the Independent advises against granting a franchise. That kind of enterprise will keep the town walking for the next generation.

Political life is so uncertain that nobody appears to want Bishop's place on the board of control. John W. Hicks, of the Oshkosh Northwestern, is entitled to consideration.

Trouble seems to be acclimating in Venezuela and war with Colombia seems probable. President Castro appears to be too small a man for even a small republic.

If the United States government is wise it will protest vigorously and effectively against the postal clerks' labor union. There ought to be a limit to civil service reform.

Botanical Experiments.

Some curious botanical experiments made at a zoological laboratory at Naples are reported by Hans Winkler. A flowerless aquatic plant, that grows normally with its roots in the sand and leaves in the water, was inverted, specimens being placed with the leaves buried in the sand and the roots floating in the water in strong light. The roots changed to stems and leaves, the buried parts became roots.

Willington to Chance It. He was obviously anxious, and she seemed almost willing. "I shall refer you to papa," said she, with a becoming blush, "before giving you a final answer." "But I am perfectly willing to take you without any references," said he, magnanimously.—Indianapolis News.

THE ASSASSIN WAS TOASTED IN BEER

Patterson, N. J., Anarchists Glory in the Shots That Laid President McKinley Low.

New York, Sept. 7.—As a whole, the anarchist group of Patterson, N. J., express no regret at the shooting of President McKinley. On the contrary there was a great gathering of the members last night at Bartholdi hall in that city, and Newman, who shot the president, was toasted in beer time and time again.

All of the talkative members of the group say Neiman is unknown to them. One of them said: "We do not know him, but he is one of us. He did what it was his duty to do, and we honor him, while personally thinking his effort might better have been employed across the ocean upon some crowned head."

They all deny there is any truth to the report that any time President McKinley was included in the plots to assassinate the heads of nations. They claim that President McKinley's life was never declared forfeited by them, and that the work of today is that of another branch of their organization.

Petro Esteve, who in the past has gloried in each killing of a head of a nation, or in any attempt, was very loud in his denials of any participation by the Patterson group in the affair at Buffalo.

SENATOR HANNA IN TEARS

Cannot Control Grief on Hearing of Shooting of McKinley. Cleveland, September 7.—Senator M. A. Hanna until called upon by a correspondent and not heard that President McKinley had been shot. When told the news at the Union club last evening, he replied, dramatically:

"I don't believe it."

"It's an Associated Press bulletin," said the reporter.

The senator's face turned pale. "The Associated Press is reliable," he replied falteringly. His determination came back in a moment, however, and with almost fierceness he replied:

"I don't believe it; I can't believe it. No, I won't believe it! There's no use talking to me about it. I can't believe anything like that."

"I cannot say anything about it. It is too horrible even to contemplate, to think that such a thing could happen to so splendid a man as McKinley, and at this time and upon such an occasion. It is horrible, awful!"

"McKinley never had any fear of danger from that source. Of course, I never talked to him upon such a subject, but I know he never dreamed of anything like this happening."

NEWS REACHES ROOSEVELT

Hurriedly Leave a Large Vermont Gathering for Buffalo.

Burlington, Vt., September 7.—The first news of the attempted assassination of President McKinley reached Vice President Roosevelt at Isle La Motte at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when the vice president was informed over the telephone that there was a rumor that the president was shot. It was confirmed by another message a moment later.

The vice president seemed stunned by the news put his hands to his head, then exclaimed, "My God!" Those around him were immediately informed of the tragedy.

Senator Proctor made the announcement and men, women and children burst into tears. A later bulletin was received stating that the president was resting quietly, and that the chances were favorable for his recovery. "Good," exclaimed the vice president, and his face lighted up. He showed his pleasure by eagerly announcing the good news to the assembly.

The vice president then left immediately on the yacht Elfrida.

Griggs Gives Warning. New York, September 7.—Former Attorney General Griggs, in discussing at Patterson, N. J., the shooting of President McKinley said: "I warned him against this very thing time and time again. I asked him for his country's sake, if not for his own to have a body guard when he went out. He refused. He laughed at me. He insisted that the American people were too intelligent and too loyal to their country to do any harm to their chief executive. He had supreme confidence in the people."

Miles Hastens to Washington. Helena, Mont., September 7.—When General Miles was informed of the attempted assassination of President McKinley, he said that he could scarcely believe that it was true, indeed, he refused at first to believe it. Last evening he announced that he would leave for Washington immediately and abandon his tour of the military posts in the West.

A Panic in London. London, September 7.—The news of the attempt upon the life of President McKinley slowly spread in London. The first reports were discredited. Then, with the confirmation and general dissemination of the news, arose a far-reaching feeling of sorrow and indignation, which, wherever Americans were gathered, almost gained the proportions of a panic, accompanied by a feverish desire for further details.

The News at Canton. Canton, Ohio, September 7.—The news of the attempt upon the life of President McKinley and the fact that his life still hangs in the balance has carried sorrow into every house in Canton. Since the first bulletin announcing the firing of the shots, everything else has been abandoned in the efforts to get particulars and in watching for information on the condition of the president. Groups of men stood on the street, tears streaming down their cheeks, and discussed the tragedy.

Dr. Rixey Told Mrs. McKinley

When it became necessary that Mrs. McKinley should be informed of what had overtaken her illustrious husband she surprised all about her by bearing up bravely, under the shock. Dr. Rixey carried the news to her, and her first request was that Mr. McKinley should be brought to her at once if it should be possible.

Mrs. McKinley, as stated, bore up surprisingly well. She was allowed to see the president for a few moments and then went to her room. No fears of her life are entertained.

HEGH GRADE OF BADGER SCHOOLS

No Evidence That There Is a Trust in Regard to Public School Matters.

A newspaper the other day indicated that there was some sort of "educational trust" in Wisconsin—that discourages any talent except Wisconsin students, says Observer, in Madison Journal. Mr. Harper of the educational department tells me the statutes of no other state in the Union are so liberal and just when it comes to considering the qualifications of teachers. The laws of Wisconsin relating to the certification of teachers simply require that a teacher coming to this state from colleges, normal schools, etc., outside of the state shall possess the same scholarly attainments that are possessed by the graduates of colleges and normal schools of this state; no more, no less.

The situation in this state at the present time shows it to be true. An examination of records in the state superintendent's office shows that more than sixty diplomas, certificates granted by colleges and schools outside the state have been recognized by the state board of examiners since last December and the holders of the documents have been placed upon an equal footing with graduates of like institutions of this state, so far as the schools of the state are concerned.

The presidents of at least three of the seven normal schools of the state have come from other states. Four-fifths of the members of the faculties of at least two of the schools in the state, if not more, received their education in schools other than those of Wisconsin. The city superintendents of Beloit, Superior, Oshkosh, Chippewa Falls, Eau Claire, Stevens Point, Marinette, Mineral Point, and Racine, are from outside the state.

There are some forty-nine cities in the state having city superintendents. In many of them, but in none of those named above, the city superintendent does not teach, but merely acts as secretary of the school board, receiving for his services a merely nominal sum. This showing would hardly lead one to conclude that there were any strong evidences of a "trust" in regard to school matters so far as these superintendents are concerned. One is surprised to learn of the large number of responsible principalships and positions as assistants that are not filled by persons prepared in Wisconsin schools.

This statement must under no circumstance be construed to mean that because of the large liberality shown, the schools of this state are not equal to the schools of the same kind in other states. Indeed, there is probably no state in the Union where the school work is so closely correlated and regularly systematized as it is in Wisconsin. From the common district school to the state university the graduation is easy and natural. But two states, New York and Pennsylvania, surpass Wisconsin in the number of state normal schools. New York having twelve and Pennsylvania eleven normal schools, for a population of about 6,000,000 while Wisconsin has seven for a population of 2,000,000. New York has one professional student in the normal school for each 1,150 of population, while Wisconsin has one for each 690 of population.

The number of graduates from the normal schools and state university in Wisconsin is about 700 each year, while the graduates from other reputable institutions would probably swell this number too 1,000. The character of the Wisconsin schools is of such high grade and so well established that no word need be said in their defense. With the large number of thoroughly equipped school men and women within the borders of our own state, it would not be strange if the number from outside, were comparatively small. On the contrary, however, the number is unusually large, and a careful and unprejudiced investigation of the facts in the case will convince anyone that there is not even a shadow of a trust in school matters in the state of Wisconsin.

A COSTLY DINNER; 20 IS THE LIMIT

Oscar, the Famous Head Waiter at the Waldorf-Astoria, in New York, Suggests a Menu.

Oscar, famous over the country as the head waiter of the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, was asked the other day to write out the menu for the most expensive dinner he could possibly get up.

"In the matter of food alone the most expensive dinner would not run so high in price as you might suppose at first thought. In any dinner in which common sense is taken into account the food alone would not cost more than $20 a cover. That is, without wine, decorations or attendance. Now you may buy new wine at almost any price, depending on the reputation of the vintners, but you may not always buy old wine. But in decorations you could go to an almost unlimited extent."

A short time ago I assembled a dinner of eighteen covers, which cost an aggregate of $722 a cover. It was, and still is, high water mark in the matter of dinners. In order to go higher I simply should have to take each course and each decoration and try to supplement it by some more expensive item. It is, after all, the decorations that cost so much in these dinners. In the $13,000 affair I decorated the room with a natural grape arbor, through which the guests walked and from which they plucked the lunches. Then there was a fountain with fish in it, which in itself was an expensive affair, entailing much plumbing and carpentry work. The flowers were all out of season and yet many plants were shown growing in a native pot. It was these decorations that cost so much.

"In the most expensive dinner I might have rare Japanese palms or dwarf trees bearing fruit, such as cherries. I could send to the Orient and import at colossal expense any of the fruit bearing trees that grow there. Dwarf pears, apples and other fruit are sometimes brought to this country, and I could have them growing on the table or the dining room would be arranged as a garden in which birds would sing, plants and trees would grow, sipping cascades would fall. The effect of sunlight or moonlight could be produced electrically; we might make summer, obviously to a holiday storm without. Oh, yes all of these things could be produced at a cost as high as you please. Such a dinner would require months of preparation and might cost $50,000, maybe more, maybe less—it would depend entirely on the trouble involved."

"But, as I have intimated, all of this is not food. It is decorations. To be sure, you would eat some of the decorations just as you would eat the contents of the decorative fruit basket on your table. But in the matter of mere food alone I must refer back to my estimate of $20 a cover, for you cannot eat more than a certain amount and that certain amount is salable only at the market rate. You could have diamonds in the meat."

"What would be the menu for the most expensive dinner?" Oscar was asked.

"Well, since I have already tried my best to make one dinner as expensive as possible, I must take its bill of fare and substitute still more important things."

Oscar turned to his desk and thought awhile. Then he turned to his typewriter and dictated the following:

Buffet Russe.
Oyster cocktails.
Amontillado.
Lemardels a la princesse.
Pasado. Green turtle. Bolivar.
Lobster in basket.
Colonie of chicken.
California style.
Rocky Mountain sheep with puree of chestnuts.

Jelly. Brussels sprouts saute.
Fresh asparagus.
Fancy sherbet.
Diamond back terrapin.
Canvashack duck. Grape fruit salad.
Fresh strawberries.
Vanilla Mousse.

Confections. Coffee. Fruits.

"There now, sir," said Oscar. "There, now, that is the very best I could do merely with food if I had a fortune to deal with. Of course, I could double the size of the dishes, but which the guests would not eat. There would be no reason in it. If, however, you will examine that menu you will see that several hunting parties would be required to procure the Rocky Mountain sheep, the duck, the terrapin, the asparagus, and so forth, at this season of the year. Add private wine and you will have a dinner that will cost you a small fortune."

Very Low Rates to California and Back in September.

Via the North-Western Line, Excursion tickets will be sold September 19 to 27, inclusive, with final return limit November 15, 1901. Liberal stop-over arrangements. Only $50.00 for the round trip from Chicago, $45.00 from Council Bluffs, and correspondingly low rates from other points. For full particulars, inquire of agents, Chicago & North-Western R'y.

Every woman loves to think of the time when a soft little body, all her own, will nestle in her bosom, fully satisfying the yearning which lies in the heart of every good woman. ## GRAND CONCERT WAS A SUCCESS

It is Thought That the Proceeds Will Come Near Wiping Out the Canning Factory Bonus Debt.

The concert given by the Midwinter Fair committee at the opera house last evening for the benefit of the bonus fund for the canning factory was a financial success. The audience was much disappointed when before the opening of the performance, W. S. Jeffers appeared before the curtain and announced that Mrs. J. G. Rexford was ill and unable to take part in the entertainment, but that the management had secured Miss Garlock, a talented vocalist from Beloit, to fill her place.

The Imperial band opened the concert with a well rendered selection, the Reception Overture, which won them well merited applause.

The Children's choir was a pretty sight arranged in tiers at the back of the stage. The pretty dresses of the young girls and their fresh laughing faces made a handsome picture. The little ones under the leadership of Mrs. W. S. Jeffers rendered two selections in a manner that elicited well deserved applause and showed careful training.

Mrs. C. T. Learned charmed her audience with a voice of extreme sweetness in culture. Her unaffected manner at once won her a hearty welcome. Prof. John Smith's orchestra rendered a selection in its usual pleasing manner and the clarinet solo by George Gray was one of the gems of the evening.

Miss Garlock sang a solo in a manner that showed the directors of the entertainment had made no mistake in securing her to take Mrs. Rexford's part. Her voice is sound and clear and charmed her audience from the start, and won for her rounds of well merited applause. She graciously responded and sang a short selection as an encore. The next selection was the famous High Step Military band.

This band had played engagements in all the large cities of the United States, and consented only after great solicitation to appear at the concert.

They certainly were high steppers and no expense had been spared to make their uniforms the most varied and striking of any musical organization in the country. Their selections were well rendered but pleased the audience. The second part was opened by Mrs. Janet B. Day, who gave a selection by Mark Twain of how an old colored woman found her son who was sold away from her into slavery when he was a small child. Mrs. Day's negro dialect was perfect and the recitation only helped to strengthen the hold Mrs. Day held in juvenile audiences.

Then followed another selection by the Imperial Band, and a song by Mrs. Garlock, which showed that the first impression made by her upon her audience was not lessened.

The selection by Prof. Smith's orchestra which was well rendered and was followed by the Bowery scene from the Belle of New York with Mrs. O. T. Learned as the Salvation Army girl. The stage setting was good and the Bowery chorus first-class. Mrs. Learned made an ideal Salvation Army girl and added new laurels to those already won.

The entertainment was a success, but a large number of seats that should have been sold for a performance of this character were not taken. However the canning factory fund got quite a lift from the show.

Mrs. John Fuller Sweeney presided at the piano and played the accompaniments for the soloists in her usual polished manner. Her playing added much to the enjoyment of the concert.

The total receipts will fall a little short of five hundred dollars, which will leave a nice balance for the fund when the expenses of the entertainment are all settled.

NO NEW LIBRARY FOR THIS YEAR

Board Stuck on a Disagreement Whether It Be a One or Two.

The public library board has not yet settled on a set of plans for their building. There is some disagreement among the members of the board as to whether the proposed structure shall be one or two stories high. In any event the building will not be constructed this fall. The foundation will be put in as soon as a plan is settled on but the main part of the building will not be built before spring.

The board is of the opinion that buildings put up during cold weather are more liable to settle and crack than one erected in the summer time. They are not limited on the time in which the building is to be completed and for that reason prefer to have the majority of the work done in the summer time.

Clarence Shackleton Dead.

Word was received this morning by Miss Jennie McFayden of this city, announcing the death of Clarence Shackleton, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Shackleton, which occurred at Three Oaks, Michigan, yesterday morning. He stepped on a rusty nail some days ago and died from lock-jaw. His age was about twelve years, and he was a bright, lovable and Christian boy of a beautiful character. The Shackleton family left here about two years ago last spring and their many friends will bear with them in their great affliction.

FORMER WORK OF BLOODY ASSASSINS

The Killing of Lincoln and Garfield and Many European Princes and Rulers.

On Good Friday, April 14, 1865, just after the war of the rebellion had been brought to an end, Abraham Lincoln was shot down in a box at Ford's theater at Washington by John Wilkes Booth, and died early on the following morning. His assassin was pursued and shot down twelve days afterward, and the other conspirators engaged in the plot were tried later by court martial and punished.

On Saturday, July 2, 1881, President Garfield was shot in the waiting room of the Pennsylvania railroad at Washington, as he was about to start for his summer vacation. Guiteau, the assassin, was a disappointed office seeker. The president was taken to Elberon, N. J., and lingered until Sept. 19, when he died of his wounds. The assassin was tried for murder, convicted and hanged. It was while visiting an exposition at Lyons that the president of the French republic, Sadi Carnot, was stabbed with a sharpened file by the anarchist Oresteia, on June 24, 1894. M. Carnot died that night. His slayer was guillotined.

The most recent successful attempt on the life of a crowned head was a little over a year ago, July 29, 1900, when the Paterson anarchist, Bresci, shot down King Humbert of Italy at Monza. But there was hardly a European monarch during the past century on whose life an attempt had not been made. The late Queen Victoria's life was endangered several times, and only a summer ago a boy of 16 fired a toy pistol at short range at King Edward VII, then the Prince of Wales, in the Brussels railroad station.

Attempts were made over and over again against the life of King Louis Philippe and of Napoleon III in France, the most notorious being the throwing of the Ossin bomb at the latter; against ex-Queen Isabella and her son, Alfonso XII; and against King Amadeo of Spain; against the Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria; against Frederick Wilhelm IV of Prussia, and the old Kaiser Wilhelm I, who narrowly escaped the attacks of Hodel and Nobbing. The present Kaiser was struck in the face by a mallet in a recent visit to Hamburg. The Russian czars have lived in constant expectation of assassination for half a century.

On several occasions European assassins have accomplished their object. The century opened with the murder of Czar Paul of Russia by conspiring nobles in March, 1801; eighty years later, in the same month in 1881, Czar Alexander II, the liberator of the serfs, was torn to pieces by a bomb. In 1820 the Duc de Bassi, father of the late Comte de Chambord, the French pretender, was shot as he was coming out of the opera house in Paris. More recent cases have been the assassination by anarchists of Premier Canovas del Castillo in Spain in 1897; and of the Empress Elizabeth at Lucerne in 1898.

Beloit Boy Killed. (Special)—Marshall Appleby received a message from Savannah, Ill., stating a boy about fourteen years of age had been killed by a train at that place and that he was from Beloit. It was found on inquiry that he was a son of Frank Antioch of this place and that his absence had not been noticed. It is thought that he was on his way to Denver where a brother resides and was stealing a ride at the time. His head was severed from his body.

HAVE NINE MILES OF THE LINE BUILT

Rapid Progress on the Beloit, Delavan Lake & Janesville Electric Suburban Road.

The Hayes Brothers company now have nine miles of grading on the Beloit, Janesville and Delavan Lake electric line completed between Beloit and Rockford.

They now have sixty teams and over one hundred men at work on the job and expect to have the work completed by the last of the coming year. No rails have as yet been laid for the reason that the rails will not be ready for delivery until the last of next month.

The fence gang is at work and are putting up fence along the right of way as fast as the grading is completed.

Large quantities of supplies for the road are now on hand at Beloit and Rockford. They include poles, ties, fence posts, wire and other equipment. The deeds for the right of way are being secured as fast as possible and the most of them have now been secured.

In one or two places options have not been secured and condemnation proceedings will have to be begun to get possession of the property.

H. H. Clough and R. W. Hill are working on the right of way matters the most of the time and have secured deeds to several places where they first thought they would be forced to condemn.

They both make their headquarters at Beloit while the work between that city and this is being carried on.

STORY OF THE SHOOTING

The Assassin First Shook the President's Hand.

KEPT REVOLVER COVERED.

Was Captured Before He Got Far from Scene of His Deed—Attempt Made to Take the Wretch's Life On the Spot.

Buffalo, Sept. 7.—President William McKinley was shot and fatally wounded while in front of the Ethnology building at the Pan-American exposition by a stranger. The wild-eyed would-be assassin fired two bullets into the abdomen of the nation's chief executive, and dashed into the crowd that surrounded the presidential party.

Cries of terror and horror arose from the spectators when the shots were heard, and the President was seen to lean heavily on the arm of his escort.

Chase for the Assassin.

"Catch him, he has shot the President," was the cry that went up and a great throng of people began the chase for the murderer. Kind hands were extended to support the wounded President. He was hurried to the hospital of the exposition and physicians made an examination of his wounds. Two jagged bullet holes were found in the abdomen. The physicians at first pronounced Major McKinley's wounds fatal.

Instantly it became known that the President was hurt, the great throng at the exposition became horror-stricken. Grief marked the countenances of thousands, and the scene was like that in the national capital when Father Abraham was taken from his country by assassin's loath.

"Some crank," said one. This was taken up by hundreds, until the cries could be heard in all of the avenues: "Kill the crank who shot the President."

McKinley Had Been Warned.

Efforts made to ascertain whether or not the President had been followed by the man who shot him, since he made his great speech at the exposition, disclosed the report that Major McKinley had been warned that in the great throng there might be some crank who would do him harm. But the President, with his usual dignified smile, said that he was in the midst of his friends.

It was while President McKinley was on his way to the Temple of Music that the tragedy occurred. The murderer evidently planned to shoot while McKinley was in front of this building. So carefully were his plans laid that he accomplished the dread deed before the people about the President could stay his arm.

One of the shots struck his left breast, dangerously near his heart. The other entered the abdomen.

Shook President's Hand.

When the President was shot he was shaking hands with the man who committed the deed. The man was well dressed and would seem almost the last person on the grounds who would attempt the chief executive's life.

He wore a high hat and fired the shots with his left hand, which appears that the crime was premeditated. After the excitement had eased up a little some one had presence of mind enough to grab the stranger and he was placed under arrest.

Nieman Is An Anarchist.

Fred Nieman is the name given by the man. He said he was from Detroit. The prisoner was taken to the Thirtieth street station.

Accounts of the shooting vary widely. But from the best sources it is learned that the stranger approached President McKinley with the deadly weapon wrapped in a handkerchief which entirely concealed the nature of the thing he held in his hand.

Stepping boldly up to President McKinley, the stranger extended the hand which clutched the revolver, and as the President, seeing the move which indicated a friendly greeting, started to put out his hand, the stranger, muttering some words that will never be known, pulled the trigger. The bullets that tore their way into the flesh of Major McKinley first penetrated the linen veil that had concealed the revolver.

First Bullet Extracted.

The bullet which lodged against the breast-bone was easily abstracted. The President then rested easily. The bullet in the abdomen was not easily found, but the wound has been sewed up.

Dr. Roswell Parke, a well-known surgeon, at 5 o'clock began probing for the bullet which entered the abdomen. Four other physicians, Drs. Menier, Mann and Van Peyrur of this city and Dr. Lee of St. Louis were with him.

The physicians would not admit that the President could recover, although others who saw him felt that possibly his splendid constitution would pull him through.

Mrs. McKinley Not Informed.

Mrs. McKinley was not at once informed of the shooting of her husband. The shock, conservative and wise people thought, would perhaps be fatal, so even though some of those who were with her knew of the tragedy they gave no indication that anything had happened. They preferred to await developments.

An attempt was made to lynch the prisoner while the police were taking him from the grounds. It proved fu-tle, however, the mob being driven back. Great excitement prevailed at the time, and it still keeps up.

Police Commissioner Cooper has had an interview with Nieman, and to him the prisoner denied that he is an anarchist.

Soon after the shooting Nieman was asked why he shot the President and said: "I am an anarchist and I did my duty."

The crowd was jumped on by a score of men and badly injured before the police rescued him.

Washington Greatly Excited.

Washington, Sept. 7.—The news of the shooting of President McKinley when it reached Washington caused a tremendous sensation. So frequent have been rumors of this sort, often put about in recent years for stock-jobbing purposes, that the general disposition at first was to withhold full acceptance of the truth of the news.

It was some time before the full force of the blow was appreciated; the people were stunned and they could not respond at once and fully comprehend the extent of the great disaster that had fallen upon the country and themselves.

Hanna Was Prostrated.

Cleveland, Sept. 7.—"My God, it can't be possible," cried Senator Hanna when the dispatch was read to him saying that President McKinley had been shot.

"It is terrible, and I am too shocked to express my feelings," he added.

The senator was prostrated by the news and begged that all dispatches relating to the condition of the President be telephoned to him as fast as they arrived.

Mrs. McKinley Hears Up Bravely.

Buffalo, Sept. 7.—When it became necessary that Mrs. McKinley should be informed of what had overtaken her illustrious husband she surprised all about her by bearing up bravely under the shock. Dr. Rixey carried the news to her, and her first request was that Mr. McKinley should be brought to her at once, if it were at all possible. Mrs. McKinley separated from her husband at the terminal station yesterday after they had returned from Niagara Falls. The President went on to the exposition and Mrs. McKinley, accompanied by her three nieces, the Misses Barber and Duncan, was driven to the Milburn residence in Delaware avenue. She was much exhausted by the strain of the morning's journey and at once went to her apartments in the hope of securing some rest. She awoke about 5 o'clock. There was no clock in the room and she sat down and devoted herself to some crocheting. As time passed, though, she grew uneasy about the President's tardiness in returning from the grounds. When the daylight began to fade she went down and joined her nieces and expressed wonder that Mr. McKinley had not arrived. Meantime Director General Buchanan had arranged so that no news of the shooting should penetrate the Milburn residence. He had shut off the telephonic and telegraphic communication with the mansion, and secret police halted every one going toward the house. It was realized, though, that Mrs. McKinley must be told before long, and Mr. Buchanan was selected for the task. Dr. Rixey went to the house and broke the news to the Misses Duncan and Barber. He waited a time for Mr. Buchanan to arrive, and then, his presence in the house having already roused some slight suspicion that everything was not quite right, he made bold to inform Mrs. McKinley. The President's wife caught at the physician's first words, and she divined that Mr. McKinley had been injured in some accident. But Dr. Rixey did not yield to whatever temptation there may have been for him to temper the blow by permitting her to think she had guessed right. He told her the whole story. Mrs. McKinley, as stated, bore up surprisingly well. She was allowed to see the President for a few minutes and then went to her room. No fears for her life are entertained, but the doctors are on guard.

Confesses His Guilt.

Leon Czolgosz, Without Remorse, Tells of Attack on President.

Buffalo, Sept. 7.—Leon Czolgosz, the accused and self-confessed assassin, has signed a confession covering six pages of foolscap, in which he says that he is an anarchist, and that he decided on the act three days ago and bought in Buffalo the revolver with which it was committed. He is unmarried. He claims to be a member of the Golden Eagles. Czolgosz has seven brothers and sisters in Cleveland, and the directory of that city has the names of about that number of persons of his name living on Homer street and Ackland avenue, a Polish settlement in the far southwestern part of the city. Some of them are butchers and others have different trades. Czolgosz's father lives on a farm about eight miles from Cleveland. The assassin is detained at police headquarters pending the result of the President's injuries. Czolgosz does not appear in the least uneasy or penitent for his action. Czolgosz shows no sign of insanity, but is very reticent about much of his career. While acknowledging himself an anarchist, he does not state to what branch of the organization he belongs. As near as can be learned the facts contained in the confession are as follows: The man's name is Leon Czolgosz. He is of Polish-German extraction. His home is in Cleveland, where he has seven brothers and sisters. He is an avowed anarchist and an ardent disciple of Emma Goldman, whose teachings, he alleges, are responsible for his attack on the President. He denies steadfastly that he is the instrument of any body of anarchists or the tool of any coterie of plotters. He declares that he did not have a confederate. His only reason for the deed, he declares, is that he believed the present form of government in the United States is unjust, and he concluded that the most effective way to remedy it was to kill the President. These conclusions, he declares, he reached through the teachings of Emma Goldman. Five alleged anarchists were arrested here last evening and taken to police headquarters. After a rigid examination they were released.

Arrest Chicago Reds.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—Information tending to show that the plot to assassinate the President was hatched in Chicago was telegraphed last night by Buffalo police to Captain Collier, chief of detectives. On receipt of the telegram Captain Collier, with a squad of five officers, went to 515 Carroll avenue and arrested all the occupants of the building at that number. Nine persons were found—six men and three women. Abraham Iseck, editor of an anarchist paper called the Free Press, was one of the number. His wife, daughter and son were also taken into custody.

Eastern Anarchists Watched.

Washington, Sept. 7.—The secret service bureau had the Paterson (N. J.) group of anarchists thoroughly under surveillance, and confident that Czolgosz had no connection with these people. Three secret service operatives were in Buffalo about the President at the time of the shooting, and another was on the way to Cleveland. While the theory of the secret service here is as stated, at the same time no facts concerning the matter are at this time known to the secret service bureau, so it is conceded to be only a surmise at present that he belonged to the Haymarket gang.

Crime Predicted in March.

Wichita, Kas., Sept. 7.—Fritz Huttman, a reporter for a local paper, while singing with the Andrews Opera company last March, was confidentially told by Antonio Maggio, a cornet player with the same company, that President McKinley would be assassinated before October, and intimated that orders to that effect had been received from an anarchist society in Rome, Italy.

To Prevent a Panic.

Bankers at New York took steps last night to protect the stock market from a panic which might have begun owing to the attempt on President McKinley's life.

Grief of Distinguished Persons.

Buffalo, Sept. 7.—Among distinguished persons who telegraphed expressions of their grief at the national calamity were Vice-President Roosevelt, who started at once from Burlington, Vt., for Buffalo; Senator M. A. Hanna of Cleveland, who was greatly shocked; Sir Thomas Lipton, on board the yacht Erin at New York; Grover Cleveland, who was fishing at Tuxedo, N. Y.; Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore; Mrs. Barber of Canton, O., sister of the President; William J. Bryan of Lincoln, Neb.; the lord mayor of London, King Edward, who was traveling from Frankfurt to Hamburg; Attorney-General Knox, at Pittsburgh; Secretary Gage, at Chicago; Secretary Hitchcock, at Dublin, N. H.; former Attorney-General Griggs, at Paterson, N. J.; Secretary of War Root, at Southampton, L. I.; Postmaster-General Smith, at Philadelphia; Secretary Long, at Buckfield, Me.; Senator Fairbanks, at Indianapolis; R. A. Alger, at Detroit; Senator Platt, of New York, and the governors of New York, Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa, Arkansas, Texas, South Carolina, Georgia, Ohio and Louisiana; also Abner McKinley, of Colorado, brother of the President.

Buffalo Citizens Are Excited.

When the President was examined by the doctors it was found that he had been wounded twice, one wound being near the center of the chest above the left side, and very painful, the other in the left side of the groin. Secretary Cortelyou asked the President if the wounds were painful. "This wound," raising his hand to the one in his chest, "hurts severely," answered the President. The shooting occurred after 4 o'clock (Eastern time) after the reception at the Temple of Music had been in progress for about five minutes. The President was surrounded by the usual number of secret service men and detectives.

When the shooting was done Detective Sergeant Geary was within four feet of the President. "It was in the Temple of Music, at the public reception, and not in the Ethnology building, that the shooting was done," said Mr. Geary. "The man was in line with the other spectators, and approached the President with a cloth on his hand. He got near because no more notice was taken of him than of any one else, and the first we knew he had fired the two shots." He was locked up in the "Black Pit" at headquarters.

Immediately upon hearing of the shooting Postmaster General Smith and Secretaries Root and Hitchcock started for Buffalo. It is presumed the others will go to the bedside of the President as soon as possible.

BOY WARNED THE PRESIDENT

Youthful Hoboken Astrologer Told Him to Beware of Assassins

New York, September 7.—President McKinley was warned on May 22 last to be cautious of assassins during the month of September. This warning was sent to him while he was in San Francisco by Gustave Meyer, a boy, who lives at No. 101 Washington street, Hoboken. At the time President McKinley was watching eagerly over the bedside of Mrs. McKinley, and when he was elected he remembered the prediction of the Hoboken boy and wrote him a letter of thanks. When Mrs. McKinley was taken ill on the western trip and was thought to be dying young Meyer wired the president at San Francisco as follows:

"Your wife will live another year—until about next February or March—but be careful of yourself. You will be shot or stabbed during the month of June or else in September."

ASSASSIN'S NAME CZOLGOOZ.

Born in Detroit and Said to Have Gone to Buffalo from Cleveland Buffalo, New York, September 7.—The police have just learned that the real name of the would-be assassin is Leon Czolgosz. He was born in Detroit and came here from Cleveland.

When arrested Czolgosz gave his name as Fred Nieman and claimed that he came to Buffalo from Detroit. Afterward he asserted that he came from Chicago, Toledo, and Cleveland.

Czolgosz is a Pole, 28 years old, stands 5 feet and nine inches high, weighs 160 pounds, has dark brown hair, blue eyes, smooth face, regular features with a prominent nose. He speaks good English.

At the home of John Nowaks, 810 Broadway, it was stated that Czolgosz came here last Saturday. He said that he was from Toledo and that he came to Buffalo to see the exposition. He was alone and had no visitors. His valise contained an empty revolver case and a few clothes.

Detroit, Mich., September 7.—Early this morning a newspaper reporter discovered that a man named Alfred Nieman had boarded at 178 Russell street up to two weeks ago, when he left for Buffalo.

The description of Fred Nieman was read to Alfred Nieman's former landlady and she declared that it fitted him except that Alfred's hair was not dark, but medium brown, wavy, and thick. He wore it brushed back off his forehead. He also had even teeth. Alfred Nieman was a wagonmaker.

Chicago, September 7.—Six anarchists were arrested in a house at Carroll avenue and St. John's place at 9:30 o'clock last night by Captain Collier, Lieutenant McVeeney, and Detectives Morrissey and McDonald. They were charged with being implicated in a plot which resulted in the attempt to assassinate President McKinley. The leader of the men arrested is Abraham Iseck, editor of the Free society, an anarchistic publication. He was formerly editor of the Fire Brand.

The police refused to give out the names of the other men. It is not known where the police received the clue upon which they made the arrest but it is thought that word was sent to them by the police of Buffalo.

Pitcher Dies on the Field.

Arkansas City, Kan., Sept. 7.—Lakin Herron, pitcher for the baseball club of this city, fell dead while playing in a game against the Joplin, Mo., nine. The seventh inning was finished and as Herron stepped out of the box he fell lifeless. Overexertion caused his death.

LEON OZOLGOOZ'S HOME AT CLEVELAND

He Was Always Sickly, and Moped About a Great Deal—He Has Nine Brothers.

Cleveland, Ohio, September 7.—Leon Ozolgoz, the assassin of McKinley, was a resident of Cleveland until two weeks ago. His family lived on a farm near Chargin Falls. Ozolgoz is twenty-five years old and has nine brothers, four of whom live here. His step-mother said this morning that Leon was sick three years and was always timid and sickly and liked to sit by himself and mope. Two weeks ago he wrote his parents from an Indiana town he was going away and that they would never see him again. One brother was a soldier in the Philippines. Leon, his step-mother said, was weak in mind, and if he shot the president it was because he was insane. He never told his family he was discontented about anything. He had no illwill against the rich or the country's chief executive and liked this country and so far as she knew he had never read the teachings of Emma Goldman. Ozolgoz's home is in the Polish settlement and everything around it indicates that the family is an industrious one.

GOVERNOR DENOUNCES DEED

La Follette Says Crime Shows Necessity of Teaching Respect for Law

Madison, Wisconsin, September 7.—Governor La Follette made the following statement: "The attack upon the life of President McKinley appears to have been one of those crimes which madmen, or by whatever other name they may be called, shock civilization throughout the world. It is significant, in emphasis of the necessity of teaching and compelling a higher and more universal respect for established law."

"In the midst of domestic peace and tranquillity, no political excitement prevailing in this country, no foreboding of evil or premonition of trouble anywhere—the dastardly hand of the assassin is raised against this man, who has braved every peril of battle, passed through all the vicissitudes of exacting public life, and so borne himself in his great office as to win the confidence of the American people, and the respect and admiration of the foremost living statesman."

"Every patriotic home is darkened, every heart is anxious, and the hopes and prayers of the American people will be with the president and his frail wife in this awful trial."

BRYAN MAKES A STATEMENT

Deplores the Attempted Assassination and Expresses Concern

Lincoln, Neb., September 7.—Following the receipt of the news of the attempt to assassinate the president, W. J. Bryan sent a brief message to President McKinley, expressing his concern. Mr. Bryan today made the following statement:

"The attempted assassination of the president is a shock to the country and he and his wife are the recipients of universal sympathy. The dispatches say that the shot was fired by an insane man and it is hoped that his is true, for while it is terrible for a president to be the victim of an act of a maniac, it would be even worse for him to be fired upon by a sane person prompted by malice or revenge. In a republic where the people elect their officials, and can remove them, there can be no excuse for a resort to violence. If our president were in constant fear of plots and conspiracies we should soon sink to the level of those nations in which force is the only weapon of the government's enemies."

TWO MILWAUKEE OPINIONS

Senator Quarles and Ex-Governor Peck Think Assassin Insane

Milwaukee, September 7.—"There is only one way to account for it," said United States Senator Joseph V. Quarles. "The assassin must have been an insane man. I can conceive of no rational motive that would prompt of an attack upon a man so universally beloved, at a time when no political excitement prevails, when prosperity and contentment are universal and when the moderation and wisdom of the administration are generally credited with much of our good fortune."

Former Governor Peck, one of the most prominent democrats in the state, was deeply affected. He believes the man who shot President McKinley is either demented or an anarchist. Furthermore, the ex-governor thinks that the tragedy of yesterday will have only a temporary effect on the commercial interests of the nation.

H. C. PAYNE TALKS OF PLOT

Holds the Shooting of President One Move in an Anarchists' Conspiracy

Milwaukee, September 7.—Henry C. Payne, national republican committeeman from Wisconsin, and an intimate friend of President McKinley, said of the attempted assassination of the president:

"The news of the attempted assassination of President McKinley, whether the wounds prove fatal or not, fills me with unspeakable horror and grief."

"The attempt upon his life was not because he was President McKinley, but because he was president of the United States, and, I believe, is only the carrying out in one detail of a general plan on the part of the anarchists to kill the rulers of the leading nations of the earth, and I feel that it is almost a crime if our government does not hereafter take better precautions to protect our chief magistrate from assassination."

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Capelle gave a dinner Thursday evening in honor of the party that took the western trip with them.

Start Girls Right!

Many beautiful girls become invalids for life, because at the crucial period of puberty they pay no attention to the laws of health. Mothers should protect their daughters' health by giving them necessary information and proper treatment. When the menses come on a girl unawares, in her inexperience she is either frightened into convulsions, or scared into trying to check the flow. Many girls have checked the flow and it has never started again. And as a result they have grown pale-faced, with "crow-feet" on their cheeks, and dark hal-moons under their eyes. A dose of taken every morning after a girl is twelve years old will bring the menses on properly and keep them regular. It will help her to develop into attractive womanhood and equip her for the duties of wife and motherhood. All druggists sell $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui.

The Hollywood, Asbury Park, N. J., February 8, 1900.

I read your advertisement in regard to Wine of Cardui in the Baltimore American, and it so favorably impressed me that on my visit to Baltimore during the holidays I purchased a bottle of it for my adopted daughter, who was suffering with female troubles. She had been under the doctor's care for some time, and when her periods would come on her suffering was something terrible. I induced her to try it and the first dose brought on her menses. She took it regularly according to the directions, and was greatly relieved. To use her own words, "It saved my life." J. WESLEY CROSS.
